WASHINGTON NEWS.

Result of the Deliberations of the Elections Committee,

On the Contested Case of Cannon and Campbell.

Porter's Restoration Favored by President and Cabinet.

Another South American Scheme Come to Light.

GRANT'S RETIREMENT BILL.

WASHINGTON, February 23.—The Grant retirement bill was taken up in the senate. Bayard moved to amend by substituting therefor a provision to pay every president of the United States who shall have served or may hereafter serve in said office, and who shall have retired from the same, annually during life, an amount equal to one-fourth part of the annual presidential salary, but this is not to be paid in case of a second presidential term. Bayard's amendment was rejected—ayes 5, nays 51. An amendment by Sherman was adopted without discussion, making the proposed retirement additional to the number authorized by law. The bill then passed, ayes 55, noes 17. Brown, Call, Davis, Jones, of Florida, and Ransom voted ayes with the republicans; otherwise the vote was a party one. The bill authorizes the president in recognition of the eminent public services of U. S. Grant, late general, to nominate by and with the consent of the senate to appoint him to the army with the rank of general, to be placed on the retired list with pay accordingly.

CANNON-CAMPBELL CONTEST.

The house committee on elections will take a vote to-morrow on the disputed election case between Cannon and Campbell. The following points have been agreed upon and will be reported on that day to the house: First, that minorities never can elect; second, that Campbell is not entitled to the seat; third, Cannon having received a majority of all votes cast should be given the seat unless disqualified by some constitutional objection; fourth, Cannon admitting that he lives in polygamous relation violates the law, and no being a constitutional officer of the government like a member of congress, but simply a delegate from a territory, holds his place at the will of congress; fifth, that the committee intend to notify the citizens of Utah in spite of the admitted citizenship of Cannon, that polygamy will not be recognized in a territory of the United States; sixth, that he should be excluded from his seat in the house.

UTE RESERVATION BILL.

The house committee on public lands ordered a favorable report upon Belford's bill for the Ute reservation in Colorado, lately occupied by the Uncompahgre and White River Utes, in the same manner as public lands of the United States.

LAND GRANT ABUSE.

Van Wyck has introduced a bill to compel railroads to pay a state license on unpatented lands donated them by the government. One provision of land grant charters is that railroads must pay the cost of survey of the land. Companies hold the land throughout the west which they have not surveyed and patented, and the courts have held the state cannot tax these lands because the United States still hold an interest in equity in them, by reason of the fact that under conditions imposed by the grant the lands might revert to the government through failure of railroads to comply with these conditions. It is claimed the railroads leave the lands unpatented to avoid taxation, and Van Wyck's bill claims for any state that proceeds against these lands for collection of taxes all interest in equity of the general government. It is thought this will encourage states to collect these taxes.

FITZ JOHN PORTER'S CASE.

The president and cabinet have, so it is said, semi-officially announced that they have decided in favor of the restoration of Fitz John Porter to the army. The only question in connection with the case is that it is undecided as to Porter's back pay. When cashiered he held the rank of colonel in the regular army, and as major-general in the volunteers. The question is now whether his back pay as major-general would accrue to him up to his reinstatement, or whether it would terminate in 1866 when the other major-generals were mustered out of the service. The question has been referred to the attorney-general. The president will nominate Porter as colonel of infantry to fill the first vacancy and Porter will probably ask to be retired.

SENATE NOMINATIONS.

The senate committee on naval affairs voted to reject the nomination of Walmouth to be paymaster-general of the navy, and Stevenson to be pay director. Some days ago the committee agreed to an adverse report on Walmouth, but held it back to give the president time to withdraw the nomination. Several members of the committee waited on the president and advised him of this action. The committee waited till to-day, and not receiving any intimation from the president, the bill was adopted and the report presented to the senate. The nomination of Stevenson was then taken up, and a motion to report adversely adopted.

The senate naval committee agreed, on a favorable report on the nomination of Theo. Wilson, of New York, chief of the bureau of naval construction.

SERGEANT MASON'S TRIAL.

In the Mason court-martial to-day, Warden Crocker described the location of Guiteau's cell, and said the arrival of troops could be witnessed from the cell window. Guiteau, when not reading or writing, spent his time in looking out of the window. Bigelow, counsel for Mason, objected to the testimony as to Guiteau looking out of the window, unless the judge advocate engaged to show that this habit was known to Mason. The judge advocate said he proposed to show this. The court sustained Bigelow's objection. The judge advocate then announced that he intended to prove that Mason knew the habits of Guiteau. Mason (rising from his chair) exclaimed: "I will clear that. I did know." The president of the court ordered Mason to be silent. No material facts were elicited to-day. The arrival of Mason's wife and little boys seems to have had a soothing effect on him. He complains bitterly of the food and quarters furnished him and constantly urges the contrast between the treatment accorded him and that accorded Guiteau by the civil officers at the jail.

PROBABLE RETENTION OF KIRKWOOD.

A feeling is prevalent among senators that the president will not now make a change in the secretaryship of the interior. It is believed that at one time he had decided to put Sargent in the place, but he could not, owing to the fact that a heavy case in which he was interested was pending. This caused so much procrastination that it is thought he will probably keep Kirkwood. He can do this very well, as he has made a good officer, and the people of Iowa very much desire that he should remain.

ANOTHER SOUTH AMERICAN SCHEME.

NEW YORK, February 23.—The Graphic's Washington correspondent has unearthed another South American scheme, coincident with Blaine's recent foreign policy, that has not heretofore come to light and which is almost on a par with the Peruvian company and Credit Industrial. The project was to work a great silver mine in Bolivia. A syndicate was to be formed with something like seventy-five millions capital, and a bonanza, by the side of which Nevada lodes would appear puny, was promised by the manager. The modus operandi was to secure a title from Bolivia to the silver district, for which that government was to receive a royalty from the production. American capital was to work it and blocks of stock were to be distributed among a large number of leading politicians who were to contribute to the prosperity of the enterprise by assisting in shaping the foreign policy of the country in certain channels. The manager presented the matter for the consideration of certain senators, and endeavored to show that the enterprise was legitimate, and above all would be profitable. All that was desired of senators and other prominent politicians was to induce the government to interfere and prevent Chili from overrunning Bolivia and absorbing the province which embraced the mine. It was urged that if they went abroad at once and put in American capital, the administration could not decline to insist that Chili should respect the property rights of our citizens. Bolivia was represented as being ready to give a sufficient guarantee on her part, the inducement being two-fold. First, a royalty from the now idle mines; and second, protection of the United States, under cover of preserving the rights of its citizens within the territory of her sister republic, whose title at the time of investment was not in jeopardy. Whether any of the senators gave encouragement to the scheme is not known, but one at least, who was offered a block of stock, is known to have declined to have anything to do with it. Should congressional inquiry in South American matters be ordered it will doubtless come out.

TEMPERANCE CRUSADE.

NEW YORK, February 23.—A Washington special to the Graphic says: A vigorous crusade against the liquor traffic will surely be inaugurated by Senator Logan, who has carefully prepared a speech favoring a bill providing that all revenues of the government hereafter derived from tax on the manufacture and sale of distilled spirits shall be divided among the states and territories in proportion to their respective population, exclusively for educational purposes. Logan will oppose both reduction and repeal of internal revenue taxes and will urge most energetically that proceeds of the manufacture and sale of liquors be devoted to bearing the expenses of a great system of free schools, and thus relieve the people of that burden. He has been gathering statistics on the subject, and says they show that the expense of carrying on the school system of the states and territories does not exceed $75,000,000, which is just the same that is estimated to be received from the tax on liquor during the present fiscal year. Logan thinks if such a law is passed it will at once become practical as well as permanent.

RECKER RETIRED.

WASHINGTON, February 23. General Rucker, lately appointed quartermaster general, was placed on the retired list to-day, and General Rufus Ingalls was appointed to the vacancy.

SUPREME COURT JUDGESHIP.

It is rumored the nomination for supreme court judge will be made to-day, and that it will be a New Yorker. It is said the president had decided to nominate Senator Edmunds, but that the pressure from New York had been so great he cannot resist.

NEW NAVY.

WASHINGTON, February 23.—The house committee on naval affairs agreed to recommend the immediate appropriation of ten million dollars to begin the construction of a new navy yard in Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The treasury department to-day purchased 380,000 ounces of fine silver for the mint.

Invitations to the heads of executive departments to the Garfield memorial services at the capitol, Monday, have been distributed. The card is a companion piece to the Garfield inaugural invitation.

The house committee on private land claims will report for the passage of a bill providing for the issuance of land scrip to Mrs. Myra Clark Gaines, in lieu of about 37,000 acres of land in Louisiana, which has been judicially confirmed to other parties.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

George thought the number of laborers destitute to be 50,000 to 75,000.

Garland spoke of the wide-spread destruction by overflow as absolutely appalling and unprecedented. The subject was referred to the military committee.

Harris presented a memorial and report of the Memphis Cotton exchange on the danger to the river front of Memphis from encroachment of the Mississippi.

George introduced a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of war to issue rations for the relief of the laboring class in distress from the flood. A telegram from the lower Mississippi was read urging immediate measures for relief, representing the destruction of property and stock immense and starvation imminent.

The bill relating to Indian traders passed. It prohibits any person from trading on any reservation without license, but specially excepts traders with the five civilized tribes of the Indian territory.

The senate passed the Grant retirement bill by a vote of 35 against 17, and adjourned without determining what bill will be next taken up. Several motions in behalf of immediate consideration of various measures, including one earnestly urged by Miller to take up the Chinese bill up, are still pending.

Logan reported back from the military committee the resolution introduced earlier in the day by George to provide relief on account of the overflow of the Mississippi with an amendment in the form of a substitute, recommended by the committee, which was promptly adopted and passed without debate. It appropriates a hundred thousand dollars to be used by the secretary of war for stores for the relief of destitute persons in districts overflowed by the Mississippi river and tributaries, and authorized the secretary to co-operate with state authorities in the distribution.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

The house went in committee of the whole on the postoffice appropriation bill. The clause under consideration was relative to the Star route transportation. Holman's amendment was pending, that when a contractor shall sub-let his contract for transportation on any route for less than the contract the postmaster general may declare the original contract at an end and enter into contract with the sub-contractor, without advertising, to perform the service on the terms on which he has agreed with the original contractor to perform the same.

To this Atkins offered an amendment providing that the sub-contractors shall enter into a good and sufficient bond and the original contractor shall not be released from his contract till the bond has been made by the sub-contractor.

Bland offered an amendment reducing to the extent of $50,000 the amount appropriated by the bill, and providing that it shall be lawful for any contractor hereafter to sub-let his contract, but he shall be required to fulfill the same according to law.

Bland's substitute was ruled out on the point of order that it changed the order of the existing law and did not reduce the expenditures.

Atkins offered an amendment providing that when a contract is declared void on account of having been sub-let the contractor shall be entitled to one month's extra pay as now.

Adopted.

Williams, of Wisconsin, moved to amend the clause for the pay of railway postal clerks by increasing the amount appropriated to $1,800,000, the amount recommended being $1,650,000. Rejected.

Pending further action of the committee, a memorial of the American Baptist Home Missionary society against polygamy and accompanying vices was presented.

The house then took a recess.

The evening session was devoted to consideration of the District of Columbia code.

Stickney Trial.

DENVER, February 23. Patterson continued his address to the jury to-day and finished at 3.30 p. m. Judge Tilford, of the prosecution, then made the closing argument and made a very strong speech. He denied the statement made by Patterson that Smith, witness of the prosecution, was under indictment and was out on bail. He said there was no indictment pending against him. The speech closed at 7.30 and the jury retired at 7.35. The verdict is not yet rendered. The crowd remained in the court room for two hours after the retirement of the jury and were then excluded from the room by bailiffs. The court adjourned to 10 a. m. to-morrow.

A Perilous Calling.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., February 23.—The schooners Edith M. Pew, Looms and Paul Revere are believed to be lost with their crews, probably fifty men.

Robinson Active.

NEW YORK, February 23.—Mining stocks were fairly active and irregular. A very large business was done in Robinson from $3.10 to $3.80, closing at $3.00. Eight thousand seven hundred and fifty shares of Robinson were sold at both boards.

Representative Berry has been requested to enter the field as democratic candidate for governor of California.

NEW MEXICO.

Its Progress and Claims to Statehood.

NEW YORK, February 23.—Tranquilino Luna, delegate from New Mexico to congress, now in New York, yesterday told a reporter that Americans generally believed Spanish-Mexicans were a very ignorant race of people. This is false. People come down to New Mexico and stay for perhaps twenty days traveling about. Of course they are not admitted in our best society; you could not expect they would be, and the consequence is they only see our roughest and worst people, and then they go home and write about degradation of Mexicans. Our best families are intelligent, refined, and, as becomes all true Spaniards, hospitable. Then about education. The territory has appropriated one-fourth of the taxes of each county to support public schools. You can see then as the population increases this will be a most generous provision. In regard to buildings, there is an advance; the old style was the adobe, not brick; factories are being built and stone quarries opened, and many buildings of brick and stone are going up. In fact New Mexico begins to see she must keep time with the march of progress. As New Mexico is coming forward so rapidly it is not fair that she should not have a voice in congress, when states with less population and nothing like her in resources have two senators and perhaps two representatives. I have therefore introduced a bill for its admission. Its salubrious climate, its mineral wealth, its grazing facilities and its healthfulness, are few advantages which it offers to new settlers. The reason it has not been developed sooner is it has been cut off from the world and bands of steel have united it, and it cannot fail to receive its share of immigrants.

Mormon Anxiety.

NEW YORK, February 23.—A special has the following: The Salt Lake City Mormons are greatly excited over the situation, and are doing all they can to prevent further congressional action and to-day petitions to congress are being signed in all parts of the territory, one by women and another by men, praying congress to halt. A petition for business men to sign will be circulated to-morrow, and many Gentile merchants will sign, as they believe revolutionizing the government will unsettle values and prove disastrous to business. In two weeks petitions with a hundred thousand Idaho signers will be in Washington. Some leading Mormons have already gone east, and Apostles Smith and Thatcher start to-morrow. Whether they are authorized to make concession is unknown, but the feeling here is that unless they are their mission will be in vain.

Nihilist Trial.

NEW YORK, February 23.—The Herald's St. Petersburg special says: The high court of the senate met yesterday to try Nihilists who have been indicted for conspiracy against the government. The public and representatives of the press were absolutely excluded. There were only about twenty people in the court, most of them belonging to the official world, generals or high functionaries in uniforms. Among those present were the mother of the prisoner, Soukhanoff, and the brother of Emehanoff. Tichinin, who is mad; Turkoff, who is also mad, and Glovernikoff did not put in appearance. The trial began at 11 o'clock. Nothing of special interest took place. The indictment was read and at 3 o'clock court adjourned.

Picked up at Sea.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 23.—A Tucson dispatch yesterday, relative to the steamer Newburn picking up a famished crew, is understood here to refer to a boat containing Captain McArthur, of the British ship Milton, and his wife and children, with a number of seamen. The Milton was abandoned while on fire, last Christmas, in three degress north latitude and one hundred and ten degrees west longitude. Three boats left the ship, one of which was picked up by the ship Cochin, which arrived January 29. The mate's boat has not been heard of.

Steamship Lost.

NEW YORK, February 23.—The Herald's London dispatch says: "Wreckage continues to wash ashore on the Irish coast from the City of London, which was reported at Lloyds on February 1st as missing. Our Kilkee correspondent telegraphs that the cover of a signal locker marked, City of London, has been picked up off Dunkenlee."

The Jeannette.

ST. PETERSBURG, February 23. Lieutenant Horber and Master Schulze of the U. S. navy left to-day for Irkutsk, via Orenburg, and will proceed down the river Lena in a steamer, to the east, in search of the Jeannette's third boat. Lieut. Danenhower starts from Irkutsk for St. Petersburg in a few days.

Mysterious Tragedy.

CHICAGO, February 23.—The citizens of Lake are excited over a mysterious tragedy. James McNamara, yard master of the Lake Shore road, was found dead in the street this morning. John Evans, a piano tuner, voluntarily confesses the shooting, but claims McNamara attacked and attempted to rob him. Both men bore good reputations.

Foul Murder.

RICE, Texas, February 23.—I. W. Norris, postmaster and a leading merchant, was called out of his house night before last by two men, who asked him to go to the store and sell them some goods, but returned in seven minutes and told his wife the men had shot him. He died instantly.

Safe Robbery and Fire.

MILFORD, Mass., February 23.—The manufactory of Estabrookes & Co. was burned this morning. Loss, $30,000; insurance, $10,000. Just before the alarm the safe was blown open by burglars, who secured $60,000 of money and decamped. The explosion caused the fire.

California Wheat.

ST. LOUIS, February 23.—Three cars of California wheat arrived here this morning, being the first lot of 10,000 bushels recently purchased by millers of this city; the remainder is now in transit or ready to move and will reach here as fast as possible.

CRESTED BUTTE.

Correspondent's Review of that Prosperous Town.

Its Remarkable Growth and Beautiful Location.

From the Boston Sunday Herald of the 12th inst. we take the following interesting letter contributed by Mr. Edwards Roberts of this city:

CRESTED BUTTE, Jan. 16, 1882. Just beyond the Sangre de Cristo range of the Rocky mountains lies a Colorado town, which, although still young, is yet well known, and, according to present indications, will very soon enjoy a reputation which will extend to the far east. It lies at the head of a fertile valley, and is within sight of many a noble mountain peak and snowy range. During the months of summer the valley and the hills are covered with tall and waving grass as green and soft as that of the Emerald Isle. In winter the same valley is covered with snow, and the noble forests which crown the mountain sides are also bent beneath their coveing of white. In these forests, too, in summer and winter, is game of all descriptions, and many a hunter returns to town at night well repaid for his hard tramp among the wilds of the Rockies. Crested Butte is the name given to this young town, and to reach it one must travel over a mountain pass that was once the terror of all travellers, but which now has been reached by the enterprising Denver & Rio Grande railroad. It is, indeed, a great change from the recklessly driven stage which once crossed this Marshall pass, to the warm car which now carries passengers over the mountain and into the Gunnison country.

MARSHALL PASS

is 11,000 feet high. The road to reach it winds up the mountain side by many a twist and turn, and many of the grades are so steep that one marvels constantly how the projectors of the road ever believed that an engine and its train could climb it. When the pass is reached at last, however, the view amply repays one for any sense of danger he may have suffered from. To the north are the varied, the picturesque and the snow-capped peaks of the Sangre de Cristo range. At their base stretches the rich and fertile valley of the San Luis, which runs down toward the south to the Rio Grande river. Around the traveler are more mountain peaks, irregular and snowy, deep valleys lighted up by what seems a tiny thread of silver from this great height, but which is really a stream of respectable size, and, stretching far away to the northwest, the valley of Tunnecht fades away into hazy distance. It is a view, this from Marshall pass, which becomes almost enchanting the more one enjoys it. It is grand and beautiful as well, and there is something exhilarating in being able to stand so far above all mountains and forests and look down upon a country which was only so short a time ago wild and unknown. But, if the ascent to Marshall pass is wonderful to many and frightful to some, the descent is not less so. At the pass the highest point on the road is reached. The two engines which have struggled so nobly to pull the train up the steep grades are replaced by one, and the descent begins. One may look over the narrow ledge upon which the train stands and see a station 500 feet below him. In an hour we shall reach that spot, but meantime are compelled to zig-zag our way down many a steep incline, round many a short curve and under many miles of rude sheds which protect deep cuts from the snows of winter. And even after the station is reached, there are still many more curves and grades to be slowly gone over, and the little engine has yet much work to do keeping the train from rushing headlong on its downward course, before the valley which leads into the Gunnison is reached. In summer, none can imagine a ride more thoroughly enjoyable than this. Then the mountains are rich and beautiful in their deep coloring, and with their long shadows and hazy look. Then the streams are all alive, and go rushing in unrestricted freedom from their source among the snowy peaks. No hot air comes to tire and make uncomfortable, but, instead, mild, fresh and invigorating breezes circle about the valleys, and whisper through the sweet smelling forests. In winter we may not enjoy the beauties of summer here on the pass, but there is still a wild grandeur which enchants and fascinates. During the cold months the fierce winds blow, and although far below there may be warmth, still here are driving snow and biting air. Snow ploughs on the engines are in demand; gangs of laborers work day and night to keep the deep cuts free from snow, and the train comes up the road pulled by three, and often six, hard-working engines.

THE TOWN.

I have written at some length of the Marshall pass, because one must always cross it to reach the town of Crested Butte, and the fact that the village has so steadily grown and has such bright prospects seems the more wonderful because of this pass, and the high mountains are between it and what we may call the outside world. Crested Butte must indeed have real merits or it could not prosper. It lies, as I have said, at the head of a fertile valley in county Gunnison, or, as they say in Colorado, "in the Gunnison." The distance to it from Denver is 327 miles, and the time consumed in reaching it is nearly 24 hours. This fact illustrated how difficult the task of building the road must have been. Much of the time is consumed in working a way over the mountains. Here, then, we have a town which is growing fast; which has hotels, smelters, coke works and the telephone. It is hardly a year old and yet has a population of 1,000, and to-day the town lots into which the place is divided are selling as high as $500 and $1,000. No town is better known in the state than Crested Butte, and, in looking into the cause of its growth and popularity, we find that there are many reasons why it should become not only popular, but prosperous. It is interesting, too, for one to seek the causes of its growth, because is shows what a sub-current of life there is in Colorado. Real merit in towns, as in men, is soon discovered, and, while a New England village may be years in growing, a town in this far west springs up, literally, almost in a night.

Well, then, Crested Butte grows and is popular because, first, it lies right at the gateway of the road leading to the vast mineral wealth of the Elk mountains. It is destined to become the supply town for prospectors and miners and the mining towns about. It is connected by direct railway with the east, has an unsurpassed location, has good water, and plenty of it, and is not so high among the mountains as to be unfit to live in during the winter. Around and contiguous to the town are extensive coal mines and rich mines of gold and silver. There are also lime, slate and marble quarries, and beside these, large belts of iron ore have been found. The agricultural industry also forms no small resource, from which the town will draw its coming importance. Fertile agricultural lands lie from east to west along the banks of the Slate river, which runs down the valley, and these lands stretch out on either side, sometimes for miles, to the base of the mountains. The deposits of anthracite and bituminous coal in and about the town are immense and apparently inexhaustible. The Colorado Coal and Iron company, officered by men interested in the Denver and Rio Grande road, has already extensive works at Crested Butte and ships a large amount of coke to Leadville and other cities. The daily shipment amounts to several hundred tons, and it is said by experts to be of a superior quality, being freer from ash and sulphur than any other known, and it is of superior strength. The company has erected boarding houses, offices and stables, and its business alone affords employment to an army of men. Just to the north of the town this same company has possession of fine anthracite coal beds, of a quality pronounced superior to any other known in this or any other country. The railway has just laid a track to these beds, and Colorado will soon be supplied with the cleanest and best of coal. Beside these coal interests, there are thousands of mining claims in the mountains about the town which are each year advancing toward pay mines. Beginning at a point some eight miles nearly northwest of the town, has been and is being developed, which extends to Gothic, and then round to Irwin. The latter town is west of Crested Butte, and near it are some of the richest mines in Colorado. Along this zone there have naturally sprung up many mining camps, such as Gothic, Ruby, Elkton, Pittsburg and Crystal, and these help to increase the importance of Crested Butte, by drawing their supplies and machinery from it. There have been built, during the past year, many business blocks and forwarding houses, wholesale and retail stores, banks and exchanges. Dwelling houses are being to-day rapidly built, and the "hammer and the saw keep time with the moments as they fly."

A ZONE OF MINERAL

And yet this is only the beginning. The people of Crested Butte naturally are delighted with their prospects. They look forward to the future with confidence. With the coming spring they expect, and have every reason to look for, a boom. Every day new arrivals are reported, and, when the snow leaves the mountains, thousands will visit the town, some to stay and others to purchase prospecting outfits. The hotel, which has just been opened, is the best in the state outside of Denver. With this and the telephone; with a plaza and wide streets; with mining towns and camps near at hand and ready to send ore to the Butte smelter; with railroad and telegraphic communication with the outside world; with numerous mineral springs, warm and cold, of varied medicinal qualities, and with an exquisite mountain scenery, the future of the town is indeed rainbow-hued with glorious promise. I know of no other Colorado town with so many natural attractions, and which has so many resources to contribute to its wealth. Not more than five miles from the town are wonderful limestone quarries. There are two grades of stone there, one a deposit from the warm springs, and which is exceedingly tough and makes a pure white lime. It is very valuable to smelters, who use it for flux for both iron and lead smelting. In this same locality is found the stratified blue limestone, which makes an exceedingly strong lime. It burns nearly white, the lime being hard and rock-like. These deposits are of great value to the town, offering, as they do, the necessary articles for the successful smelting either of silver or iron ores. Near the quarries are large deposits of fire clay. It is milk-white in color, and when put in water, slacks like lime and becomes a pure paste. Specimens have been sent to Pittsburg and St. Louis, and the article has been readily pronounced remarkably pure, and suitable for the best fire brick. There are capitalists now negotiating with the owners of these deposits to put in the necessary machinery for brick making. Another strip of the undeveloped resources of this wonderful town is slate. The Slate river passes through layer after layer of the finest blue slate, while in one place is a stratum of the finest purple slate. It is said that there is slate enough about Crested Butte to roof one-half our union. Nor is this all. Not far away, in the main range, there are to be found large bodies of marbles. Among these are pure parian white marble, tinted flesh-colored and variegated marbles. Many of these are as pure, fine and beautiful as any found in Italy.

But surely I have given instances enough to prove that Crested Butte is a remarkable place, an unusual town. It is more than that; it is a beautifully located town. It nestles at the very feet of high mountains, which rear their high heads far toward the deep blue sky as though they considered themselves the natural guardians of the place. The grass of summer, which grows to great height, furnishes food for thousands of the sleekest cattle. The forests are of pine and spruce, and scent the air for miles around, while from out their dark recesses come forth the purest streams man ever looked upon. Springs abound to give the invalid health, and game is plenty to satisfy the hunter. I venture to say that the seeker after precious metals, the coal miner, the quarry man, the smelter, the manufacturer, the business man and the man of pleasure, will find here that which will satisfy him. It is a place to be visited, not only that one may study a representative Colorado town, but that he may enjoy the beauties of nature here so lavishly displayed. It is a sight never to be forgotten, to stand within the town and gaze far down the valley, or up at the grand old mountain peaks, which rise to the height of thousands of feet.

There are no communications on the sewer age question to-day.

The Leadville Chronicle is branching out editorially. Wednesday it had a fine editorial on St Jacob's Oil.

The dispatch of William Henry Smith, general manager of the Western Associated Press is sufficient answer to the charges against Sherman. It shows the character of the prosecution or rather persecution.

For once there will be a feeling of gratitude generally entertained for the New York office seekers. They prevented the nomination of Senator Edmunds as judge of the supreme court by the pressure exerted for a New Yorker. The senate cannot afford to lose Senator Edmunds.

The south has little after all to complain of in the action of the government toward it. During the yellow fever epidemic rations were issued to the poor. Now an appropriation of rations is asked for the sufferers by the flood in the south. The north takes care of its own poor.

Several of the statesmen who "saved Indiana" in the last campaign were indicted for robbing the treasury yesterday. The "Grand Old Party" is playing in great luck this year. —[Denver News.

We do not wonder that the News makes the most of this. It is a shame and disgrace to the party. Most of these statesmen have '06 medals.

It is to be hoped the Grant relief bill will be speedily disposed of. It is getting to be almost a national disgrace to have our first citizen paraded as a sort of a pauper. It is not long since that a public subscription of $250 000 was made for Grant and the proceeds given to him. It is to be hoped the passage of this bill will end the matter.

It is foolish to waste any sympathy on Bradlaugh. The contest over his seating had many foolish aspects, but the action of parliament on the 22d was judicious and just. Bradlaugh chose to show his open contempt to the house by his disobedience to the speaker, and the house very promptly expelled him. It could not do less and expect respect. The only thing to be regretted is that it may create among some people of good intentions some sympathy for him. This he does not deserve. He is a cheap demagogue, whose immoral writings have disgusted decent people. His atheism is mere cant which he uses to obtain notoriety.

Judge Helm seems to have created a bad impression upon the Denver Republican. Probably the absolute impartiality of the judge, and the evident partiality of the Republican for the accused has something to do with the impression.—[Leadville Herald.

This is a very probable explanation. Judge Helm has not allowed the lawyers or the prisoner to run his court. When the first outbreak of the prisoner occurred he told him that he should have him handcuffed and manacled if it was repeated. This stopped him and had otherwise a most salutary effect. The defense did not like this. Judge Helm charged the jury that the defense must prove the accused insane, not that the prosecution must show him to be sane. This was another source of offense to the defense. Again, he has cut short stump speeches and hastened the trial, which is satisfactory to all good people, though not liked by the lawyers.

When President Arthur delivered his first message to congress in December the News said:

Mr Arthur might have made his message much briefer and more pointed by simply saying "This government belongs to the stalwarts. We are the stalwarts and we will divide the spoils among ourselves."

All the appointments made by the president since the delivery of that message show that the News was right in its criticism. Not a solitary half breed has been given an office of any consequence since congress assembled. —[Denver News.

As correct as usual. The only appointment of importance President Arthur has made outside of his cabinet is that of a judge of the United States supreme court. To this position he appointed a half-breed, Judge Gray of Massachusetts. Ex Governor Boutwell was a candidate and one of the two Massachusetts delegates for Grant at the Chicago convention. Still the president declined to nominate him and put in a half breed instead.

The Herald has taken the pains to ascertain the truth or falsehood of the charge made by the GAZETTE to the effect that Senator Teller doctored his speech in the Record, and now has the satisfaction of stating that not only did he not doctor the particular speech in question, but he never revises his speeches, which are printed in the Record precisely as he delivers them. Now it is in order for the GAZETTE to invent a new charge.—[Leadville Herald.

It is not in order at all. We don't retract anything. The eastern papers unanimously stated that Senator Teller made "an exhibition of himself" in his speech. He was reported to have said certain things which his speech in the Record did not represent him to have said. For example his impugning the motives of Senator Sherman, saying he (Sherman) was voting for the bill to put money in his (Sherman's) pockets, did not appear in the Congressional Record. The whole speech must have been very much toned down or it would have not justified the summaries of it that appeared in the eastern press.

General Rucker, as was expected, resigned his office as quartermaster-general in the army, and General Rufus Ingalls is appointed in his place. General Ingalls is a personal friend of Grant, and it has long been an open secret that Grant desired him to hold this office as soon as General Meigs was retired. But the appointment was delayed so that Sheridan's father-in-law might have the short honor and increased pay as a retired officer. General Ingalls has long been assistant quartermaster general and was in the direct line of succession. He was born in Maine in 1820, and graduated from West Point in 1843. He was appointed captain in 1849 and from that date has served continuously in the quartermaster's department. Before the war he acted as quartermaster in the Mexican and Indian wars. At the outbreak of the rebellion he was made chief quartermaster of the volunteer troops arriving at Washington. He was also chief quartermaster under McClellan and supervised the moving of the supplies to the Peninsula, thus changing the base of supplies from the York to the James river. He also supervised the change of supplies from the James river back to Washington. He was chief quartermaster under Grant, and superintended the second removal of the base of supplies to the Peninsula. After the war he was made chief quartermaster of the Atlantic division. In 1874 he received the appointment of assistant quartermaster general of the United States army, with the rank of colonel, and retained this office until his promotion yesterday. It will be noticed he is 62 years of age and therefore may be retired at any time.

M Emile Zola author of the vivacious story "Pot Bouille" which is being published in the Gaulois, has his hands full with a novel law suit on his hands. A sensitive Parisian magistrate, indignant at having one of the characters in the narrative given the name of which he himself happens to be the possessor, has intimated his intention of proceeding against Zola in a court of justice to obtain suppression of his patronymic wherever it may have been introduced. The [illegible] M Duverdey is the name of the [illegible] and he is the editor of the Gazette des Tribunaux. Now, if Zola had only introduced the name of M Smith or M Jones he might have given [illegible] this aggravation.

Gladstone's Finances

Mr Gladstone, having a large family to provide for, none of whom have married money, prudently sold the lease of his beautiful house in Carlton House terrace some years ago and removed to Harley street, where his rent would be half of that of the house he left. Before leaving Carlton terrace he sold his ceramic collection. He now lives in London in the official residence of the first lord of the treasury. It is an old fashioned mansion of the ordinary eighteenth century London pattern, in Downing street, but was greatly rehabilitated and improved for Lord Beaconsfield. Mr Gladstone received from his father a fortune of $500,000. The old baronet gave his younger sons most of their portion in his lifetime. He died very rich. Much of his success he owed to this country. At the instance of Sir Samuel Scott & Co he came here on very important commercial business for them, and formed connections which were subsequently of great value to himself in his Liverpool business in which his second son, Robertson, succeeded him. Mrs Gladstone had some fortune but her money—and a good deal of her husband's—was sunk in disastrous mining investments, entered into with her late brother Sir Stephen Glynne. At his death Mrs Gladstone, as his eldest sister succeeded to the Hawarden estates, which are put down in the Parliamentary at £18,000 a year, but, probably owing to various charges upon them, expense of management and bad years have not brought in a net income of more than a third of that sum. Mr Gladstone's three brothers, of whom but one, Sir Thomas, survives, were all very affluent. One of the daughters of his brother, Captain Gladstone, married the earl of Belmore, and another is the wife of the dean of Durham. Mr Robertson Gladstone alone of the brothers shared the premier's political views.

Mrs Burnett

Washington Letter

A little more about Mrs F H Burnett. The woman whose books are among the Nineteenth century classics is simply one of the nicest women in the world. Her husband, who is a gifted oculist, is just as nice as she is. She takes half a dozen girls to a ball, provides them with partners and then dances herself with the genuine enjoyment of a debutante. The very cream of society is to be found in her pretty house. She is dreadfully run after, but not a bit spoiled by it. A devotee, although not a native of Washington, must make this plea for it. Nowhere in the world does mere money go for so little. There is so much talent and charm among the cosmopolitan part of the society here that it is enough to override the plutocracy. Things change so constantly that it is not worth while to spend money where it can make no permanent impression. Public men are, as a rule, obliged to live up to their income, and it is very hard to save money in Washington.

Æsthetic Oyster and Tobacco Dealers

The æsthetic craze seems to have seized even the advertisement "artists." In different parts of the city Oscar Wilde may be seen depicted in red, black and yellow, holding in one hand a sunflower or lily, in the other a cigar, an oyster stew, an apple pie, as the case may be, while beneath are inscribed the words: "Oscar Wilde says Brown's cigar is quite too utterly utter," "James Blank's pies are too succulently crustful," or "Oscar insists that Hearl's stews are milkfully intense and utterly oysterfull."

During the race at the park in Chicago last June, a jockey who was riding the Belle of Nelson, either by negligence or design, rode against the stallion Wolverton, the result being that the latter was thrown and killed. Suit was brought for the value of the horse, which was placed at $10,000, and after a trial of two days the jury yesterday returned a verdict for $4,500.

FOUND AT LAST

Junipero Serra's Grave Discovered in the Carmel Mission

Monterey Argus

A ripple of excitement was caused on our streets last Tuesday when it was reported that the long lost and much sought for grave of Father Junipero Serra, the illustrious founder of this city and the San Carlos mission, had been found at the latter place. For the following particulars we are indebted to Rev Father Casanova, parish priest of this place, who has always taken a deep interest in this matter. Some time since Father Casanova ordered workmen to clear away the rubbish, which was from two to three feet deep, from the floor of the church so that a strict search could be made for the graves of the priests and other dignitaries buried within walls of the Old Mission and particularly that of Junipero Serra. Believing that the grave of Serra was situated in the sanctuary, from a document in the possession of Father Casanova, which locates the spot the workmen commenced operations as near as it was possible to tell, right over Serra's grave. After digging down about three feet through accumulated dirt and rubbish, the pick in the hands of the workmen struck a board and immediately surmising that this was what he sought, went to work carefully and uncovered several redwood boards set in evenly and immediately over stones which evidently covered a grave. The coffin had been placed in a narrow tomb, which was covered with stone slab and over the slabs was the boards struck by the workmen while digging. One of the stone slabs at the foot of the grave was broken and the weight of the dirt and rubbish above had forced the board covering the slab to give way, filling the foot of the coffin with earth. The upper portion or head of the coffin, and contents were in a splendid state of preservation considering the fact that they had been there undisturbed for upwards of a century. Father Casanova says he is fully convinced that it is the grave of Junipero Serra as its location coincides exactly with the document before mentioned. A thorough examination and disinterment of the remains was not attempted at the time of the discovery as Mr Casanova intends to go on with the work and to have the entire floor of the mission cleared of dirt when the other graves will be opened and the name of each silent sleeper ascertained. When this is accomplished notice will be given and the public will be admitted to view the remains of the immortal Junipero Serra. It was reported at the time of his death and believed by many to this day that the remains of the eminent father were taken to Spain and there buried. But Mr Casanova disputes this and has many reasons for his belief that Junipero Serra was buried in the sanctuary of the mission he own energy and perseverance had caused to be built. The report that [illegible] Serra was [illegible] at the time to deceive the Indians who desired his body and who would have taken it by force had they believed it was buried in the mission.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

How it was Celebrated in Colorado Springs

It cannot be said that Washington's birthday was generally observed by the people in Colorado Springs. The banks were all closed and the postoffice observed Sunday hours, but comparatively few of the merchants closed their places of business. The only event of the day was the masquerade ball given by Co. A [illegible] in Court House hall in the evening. This ball had been looked forward to with great interest by many and for several weeks past those contemplating attending have been engaged in preparing costumes for the occasion. Many of the costumes worn were of original make up, [illegible] the Manitou costumer supplying those with suits who had not time to prepare their own. Long before the dancing began nearly all of the chairs in the hall were occupied by interested spectators, while the floor was crowded with merry maskers. Extreme caution had been exercised by the committee of arrangements to prevent the admittance of any questionable characters to the hall.

Shortly before nine o'clock the ball was opened with a grand march in which only those in costume participated. Many of the costumes were handsome, although comic ones seemed to predominate.

The first half of the dancing programme consisting of ten numbers was completed about 11 o'clock when the floor managers announced that it was time to unmask.

Immediately after unmasking as many as could be seated adjourned to Pascoe's restaurant, where a splendid supper had been prepared. After supper dancing was kept up until 2 o'clock. Thus passed one of the most enjoyable as well as the most successful mask balls ever held in Colorado Springs, and one Company A may well be proud of.

INCREASE OF CAPITAL.

Meeting of the Stockholders of the Mexican National Construction Company

A meeting of the stockholders of the Mexican National Construction company (Palmer-Sullivan) was held in this city yesterday. Nineteen-twentieths of the stock was represented. By a unanimous vote the capital stock was increased by $3,000 000. It appeared at the meeting that nearly the entire amount of new stock was taken by the present stockholders. This amount will enable the company to complete, equip and put in operation 729 miles of road, 191 of which are in Texas and 5[illegible] are in Mexico. The completion of this mileage will entitle the company to $5,[illegible],000 in subsidies from the Mexican government payable in stipulated sections as completed. Of this mileage [illegible] miles are complete and in operation. Rails and rolling stock are bought and paid for for the entire 729 miles. Grading is completed for 550 miles, and ties have been bought and delivered for 500 miles. It is expected that the 729 miles will be completed and in operation before the end of the year. The total amount expended on these lines in the shape of [illegible] 1880 is [illegible] 00,000. The entire system for which concessions have been [illegible] covers 2,000 miles [illegible] shows that the lines now completed [illegible] then used [illegible] When the [illegible] are completed there will remain a gap of 470 miles to connect the City of Mexico with the United States by main line which will be the shortest and most direct route between this country and the City of Mexico.

FLOOD AND FAMINE

People in Louisville in Danger of Starving—The Floods Over at Cincinnati.

LOUISVILLE'S LOSS

LOUISVILLE, February 22.—The chief scene of interest in the flooded district to-day was the distribution of a large quantity of provisions donated by Capt. William Hite to water beleaguered women and children, some of whom had not had food for two days. The thrice needful and welcome articles were taken by men in the life saving service, who rowed from tenement to tenement and hoisted them into the second story windows. It was an impressive sight to watch the withered faces of old beldames and parched and pallid countenances of children at the windows, waiting with hungry eagerness for the coming of the boats. While the present flood has proven a disastrous one to property, it might have been more terrible in its results to the unfortunate people who have suffered by it, had they been subjected to bitter cold, and Washington's birthday will long be remembered as a day when the flood reached its greatest height and began to recede. The most serious loss occurred at the distillery of Mattingly & Sons. The loss will not fall upon the proprietors, but upon the butchers, Gregory & Harris and Kraft & Seeford, who from present indications lose heavily, probably in the neighborhood of $15,000. A number of cattle were taken out last night as long as men could see to work, and until the water became too deep.

LOUISVILLE, February 23.—The old city sewer burst this morning on account of the flood, and the water soon surrounded about thirty houses. It is thought that most of the flood is over.

CINCINNATI, February 23.—The flood is practically over, and the damage will not be very great as the people had prepared for it. The river is falling an inch an hour.

Victims of the Union Generale

NEW YORK, February 23.—The Tribune's editorial says: Our regular Paris correspondent mentions the most conspicuous victims of the recent collapse of religious banking. Among these are the emperor of Austria, who has lost 30,000,000, the Comte de Chambord, whose investments in Union Generale amount to $1 000 000, the prince and princess DeBroglie, whose losses exceed 23 400 000, and the unfortunate duke of Cumberland, the blind king George, whose wife is sister of Wales, the king of Greece and empress of Russia.

The Expulsion of Bradlaugh

LONDON, February 23.—In the commons Gladstone this afternoon stated that a motion for the issue of a new writ for Northampton would relieve the house from all difficulty, but as Bradlaugh had not sat during the debate his conduct was not such as would vacate his seat. Gladstone reiterated that the house had acted beyond its powers in preventing Bradlaugh from taking the oath but Bradlaugh's conduct was an act of flagrant disobedience to the house, but not to the chair. He would leave the question to the majority, giving it his assistance.

Northcote complained of the conduct of Gladstone but confined himself to moving an amendment that Bradlaugh be prevented from entering the precincts of the house. Lord Randolph Churchill's motion that a new writ be issued for Northampton was rejected without division. A motion of Mr Lyons liberal member from Dublin that Bradlaugh was guilty of profanation and is therefore incapable to sit in the house of commons, was withdrawn because of legal objections. During the discussion of the point, Labouchere demanded that Bradlaugh be heard at the bar of the house. The house receiving this unfavorably, Bradlaugh passed the bar and took his seat. In consequence of this rash act of disobedience and of Gladstone refusing to act, Northcote withdrew his first motion and moved that Bradlaugh having disobeyed the chair and being in contempt of the house be expelled. Gladstone supported this motion, which was passed by a vote of 211 to 8. Bradlaugh voted with the minority, Gladstone abstained. Bradlaugh then quietly left. Upon motion of Northcote, a new writ for Northampton was ordered, Labouchere stating that Bradlaugh would be a candidate.

LONDON, February 23.—Bradlaugh will proceed immediately to Northampton and enter the contest for the seat made vacant by his expulsion to-day.

OMAHA & DENVER SHORT LINE.

Its Convenience to Colorado Business Men.

Commencing Sunday, November 6, 1881, the Union Pacific company will run a fast Omaha express through between Denver and Omaha daily, over the recently constructed Julesburg cut-off:

Leaving Denver (breakfast)	8:00 a. m.
Arrive at Sterling (dinner)	3:20 p. m.
Arrive at North Platte	7:30 p. m.
Arrive at Omaha	7:30 a. m.
Arrive at Council Bluffs (breakfast)	6:00 a. m.
Arrive at Chicago (Chicago time)	6:30 a. m.

Time, Denver to Omaha, twenty-three and one-half hours; time, Denver to Chicago, forty-six hours.

This new route is 180 miles shorter than any rival, six hours the quickest to Omaha, seven to fifteen hours the quickest to Chicago, St. Louis and all points east, and it runs the finest trains ever built constructed by the Pullman company expressly for this line. They embody every feature of safety, convenience and luxury yet attained in railway equipment. It is the only through line possessing a water grade across the plains (averaging less than ten feet to the mile). It is the most picturesque route, has the best dining stations, the heaviest steel rails, best iron bridges and most careful ballasting.

Passengers from Leadville, Gunnison, San Juan and all points in southern Colorado make close connection in the Union depot, Denver, and arrive in Chicago and all eastern cities so as to have a full day for business on the day of arrival, practically saving from twelve to twenty-four hours, and avoiding all night changes.

Meantime the old Kansas Pacific route, now Kansas division Union Pacific railway, to Kansas City and all points east and southeast, and the Pioneer Union Pacific route from Denver, via Cheyenne, to Omaha and the east and northeast, maintain their usual standard of excellence. Tickets via Cheyenne are good over the new route, or vice versa. 1-23-tf
